Using your time – Harry Salter

This weeks Parasha recalls the story of Korach's rebellion. Korach was the great-grandson of Levi, and a first cousin to Moshe and Aaron. He experienced the enslaved years in Egypt, the miracles of the exodus, journeyed through the Red Sea and received the Torah on Har Sinai with the rest of the Bnei Yisrael.

As a Levi, he had the honour of participating in the service in the Mishkan and the Beit HaMikdash when the Bnei Yisrael ended up in the Promised Land. Despite all of this, Korach led a rebellion against his family and the status quo, as set out by Hashem.

Rabbi Firer, born in Poland and passed away in 1988, wrote an essay entitled 'The Danger of Doing Nothing', which analysed Korach's character and the reasons behind the rebellion. He states that as Korach had no goal or task or direction in life he began to be concerned about himself, his honour, his status and his ego.

Korach started his rebellion against Moshe and Aaron after the sin of the spies, when the Bnei Yisrael were punished with forty years in the wilderness. They now had plenty of spare time on their hands, and Korach seized the opportunity to stir up 250 community leaders into a frenzy of dangerous arguments.

Rabbi Firer notes that when the Bnei Yisrael were busy arranging how to capture the Land of Israel, they had no time for rebellion. Even if one wanted to start a rebellion, there was a greater goal of unity. However, after the sin of the spies, the Bnei Yisrael had time to waste.

This lessons can be brought into our lives as we approach the summer holidays. The time may seem long and we may have extra time on our hands. Instead of using our time for trouble, we should use the extra time to bring unity and harmony.

AUGUST 2024 EVENTS

In Conversation with Paul Gross "WHAT YOU SEE FROM HERE, YOU DON'T SEE FROM THERE"

Few outside Israel appreciate the scale of the national trauma caused by the events of 7 October. Israel is not the same country or society as it was on 6 October, and understanding how and why it has changed is critical to understanding why Israeli's view the atrocity - and their country's response - differently to the rest of the world.

TUESDAY 6 AUGUST
8.15PM

Paul Gross writes and lectures on Israeli and global politics. His writing can be found in a number of publications in Israel, the UK, and the US; and he has appeared as a political commentator on Israeli English-language news channels. In the months before 7 October, he was involved in the mass protests against the government, as one of the leaders of the "Olim for Democracy" movement.

Paul moved to Israel from the UK in 2007 after working for the Home Office on legislation tackling religious discrimination, and for the Embassy of Israel in London as the Ambassador's speechwriter. He has a Masters in Middle East Politics from the School of Oriental & African Studies (SOAS).
