Parshat Behaalotcha – Rabbi Josh Harris

Repetition is a common theme in the Torah. Whenever we encounter repetition it demands us to identify a message which was not conveyed previously. This week's Parsha opens with the commandment of kindling the Menorah in the Mishkan, a command we've already read about in Parshat Tetzaveh and Parshat Emor. What new idea are we supposed to learn from the repetition in this week's Parsha?

We've spent the last two Parshiyot reading about the census that was taken of the Jewish nation, followed by a description of the special role given to the Leviim in regards to the dismantling, transporting and reassembling of the Mishkan. It could be easy to feel disheartened about one's own role in the Jewish nation after reading about the exclusivity given to the Leviim. Sforno, the 15th century Italian commentator, explains that the Menorah teaches us that the exact opposite is true. He singles out the following verse as the purpose for the repetition. "When you kindle the lamps, toward the face of the Menorah shall the seven lamps cast light." The Menorah contained one central branch, and three branches on each side of it. The side branches were directed towards the middle branch. Sforno explains why this detail is so important. The Jewish people are a nation made up of individuals. Each individual shares a mutual goal, the service of G-d. However, each person utilises their own strengths and forges their own path to do so. Despite the individuality, all the branches are able to coexist when facing towards the middle branch; when all parts of the nation understand that the goal of their labour and toil is the service of G-d. Yes, the Leviim have a specific job to do in the Mishkan, but that does not eliminate the individuality of the rest of the nation. Everyone has their own path, their own strengths, and their own mission in the service of G-d.

This idea helps to explain the Bnei Yisrael's complaint later in the Parsha about the lack of meat to eat in the desert. As part of G-d's response, He tells Moshe to gather 70 elders whereupon Hashem will bestow his spirit on Moshe and then it will spread to the elders. Both the complaint and response seem bizarre. Bnei Yisrael have been eating the Manna, a purely spiritual food that could taste however they wanted it to! Why did they so strongly desire meat? The response also seems out of place – what was the prophecy of the 70 elders supposed to achieve?

Meshech Chochma, the 19th century commentator, explains that the nation was struggling with the special role given to the Leviim. They felt disenfranchised from spiritual pursuit seeing as spiritual attainment had seemingly been kept aside solely for the Leviim. They therefore concluded that the Manna, a sustenance which was purely spiritual, was irrelevant and pointless for a group of people who had been locked out of spiritual service. Hashem told Moshe to gather seventy elders who were selected from every tribe amongst the nation in order to show them that while the spiritual work in the Mishkan had been set aside for a select group, there are countless other means of spiritual attainment that a person can achieve. As long as the individual aspires to be a receptacle of G-d and chooses a path of spiritual growth, the sky is really the limit!

Kinloss is delighted to announce our Scholar in Residence this week is Rabbi Joseph Dweck,
Senior Rabbi of the S&P Sephardi Community of the United Kingdom

KINLOSS

Rabbi Dweck is American born and has lived in Los Angeles, California and Brooklyn, New York. He studied in Jerusalem at Yeshiva Hazon Ovadia under the tutelage of former Sephardi Chief Rabbi Ovadia Yosef z"l. He also studied psychology and philosophy at Santa Monica College in California and received a Bachelor of Arts degree in Liberal Studies from Excelsior College. Rabbi Dweck received his Semikha (rabbinic ordination) from Rabbi Ovadia Yosef under the auspices of the Sephardic Rabbinical College of Brooklyn, New York. He received a Master of Arts Degree in Jewish Education from Middlesex University at The London School of Jewish Studies.

Rabbi Dweck served as Rabbi of Congregation Shaare Shalom, a Syrian Sephardi synagogue of over 700 members, in Brooklyn, New York from 1999 to 2014 and also served as Headmaster of Barkai Yeshivah, a large Jewish day school in Brooklyn from 2010 to 2014. He has an eclectic taste in music and has received training as a hazzan in the Oriental Sephardi tradition by Rabbi Rephael Elnadav z"l and Cantor Moshe Habusha.

In his capacity as Senior Rabbi, of the S&P Sephardii Community of the United Kingdom, Rabbi Dweck has the honour of being the Deputy President of the LSJS; a President of The Council of Christians and Jews and Ecclesiastical Authority of The Board of Deputies of British Jews. Rabbi Dweck also serves as a member of the Standing Committee of the Conference of European Rabbis.
Rabbi Dweck resides in London with his wife, Margalit, and five children.

COLONEL RICHARD KEMP CBE
MAJOR (RES.) KEREN HAJIOFF

WEDNESDAY 14TH JUNE, 8PM

Colonel Richard Kemp CBE served in the Army for 29 years. During his final period of military duty, he was head of the international terrorism and Iraq team for the Joint Intelligence Committee and was also Chairman of the COBRA Intelligence Group. In both of these roles he handled all major global terrorist attacks, including those against British interests.

Major (res.) Keren Hajioff grew up in Kinloss and moved to Israel at the age of 19, where she served for 13 years in the Israel Defense Forces. Keren was then appointed Senior Advisor to the last two Israeli Prime Ministers, where she played an instrumental role in shaping Israel's foreign policy and strategic communications. Keren has also worked to revamp the country's Iran strategy, was involved in mediation efforts between Russia and Ukraine, and helped to strengthen regional relationships through the Abraham Accords.

THE 8am WEEKDAY MORNING MINYAN NEEDS YOU!

4 years ago Kinloss were proud to have two flourishing morning minyanim.
Inevitably during Covid we were only able to get the numbers to support one.

6 months ago the 8.00am minyan was re-established, initially just on two days a week, and since Pesach it has been taking place every weekday morning again.

We are fortunate to have a small core of regulars but they can't always attend, due to holidays, appointments, etc., and in the last few weeks we have sometimes struggled to reach a minyan. I hope you agree that this should not be happening in a community of our size.

On Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays, the service is followed by an excellent short shiur
by either R'Fine (Tues) or R'Heller (Wed & Thurs)

The weekday minyanim are there for you when you might need them, so we ask you to please help us and others by agreeing to join a rota and to join us at least once a week.

If you wish to help please speak to Jeremy Mindell, Leonard Klahr or Shimon in the Shul office 020 8346 8551
