Thanks a Loaf!

In Vayikra 7, 11-15 we are instructed about the Thanksgiving Offering or Korban Todah. The person bringing the offering would have to provide 40 loaves as well as an animal offering. The loaves were divided into four groups: unleavened loaves mixed with oil all, unleavened wafers smeared with oil, loaves of scalded fine flour mixed with oil and loaves of leavened bread. Ten of each were brought.

"Rav Yehuda said that Rav said: Four must offer thanks to God with a thanks-offering and a special blessing. They are: Seafarers, those who walk in the desert, and one who was ill and recovered, and one who was incarcerated in prison and went out. All of these appear in the verses of a psalm" (Psalms 107).

This offering is atypical in two respects. Unlike other non-penal sacrifices, it had to be consumed on the very day it was brought (Vayikra 7, 15). Moreover, the twenty leavened loaves are the only instance of Chametz being brought. The altar and the ritual areas of the Mishkan and Temple were Chametz free zones.

The combination of a large number of loaves and a short timeframe within which they needed to be consumed, meant that the sacrifice could not be brought as a private act. Rather, the grateful offeror would perforce invite friends and family to join in his Seudat Hodaah, meal of thanksgiving. The Netziv (1816-93) explains that the celebration of freedom / recovery / relief is a form of Pirsumei Nisa, requiring honouring Hashem in the presence of company.

These four instances of gratitude also form the categories for which one should "bensch gomel" in shul. In part, the obligation to say the "HaGomel" prayer in front of a minyan reflects the requirement that the loaves of the Korban Todah needed to be shared, not consumed alone.

In non-leap years Parashat Tzav always coincides with Shabbat HaGadol, the Shabbat before Pesach. On Shacharit of Erev Pesach we do not read, King David's "Psalm of Thanksgiving" (Tehillim 100). The explanation is that the Korban Todah was not brought on Erev Pesach as Chametz loaves could not be consumed after the fourth hour.

Rav Shimshon Rafael Hirsch (1808-88) notes that the word Todah itself has two meanings. On the one hand, it means "thanksgiving," but it also means "acknowledgment" or "confession." According to Rav Hirsch, this dual meaning reflects the true nature of the Korban Todah. When someone brings a thanksgiving offering, they are not simply expressing gratitude for a particular event or circumstance. Rather, they are acknowledging the broader reality of God's presence in their life, and confessing their dependence on Him for all things.

In this vein The Netziv explains, the korban todah, has a focus on humility. In acknowledging that our abilities and accomplishments are ultimately gifts from Hashem, we should strive to cultivate an attitude of gratitude in our lives, recognising and appreciating the many blessings that we have and continue to receive.

Shabbat Shalom

Greatness, Kiddush, Kindness & Compassion

Rabbi Jacob ben Asher who lived in Cologne and then Toledo (1270 to 1340) is known as the Baal HaTurim or the Tur after his formidable halachic codex, which arranged halacha into the conceptual areas and framework, familiar to us today as the sections and subsections of the Shulchan Aruch.

He explains that this Shabbat is known as "Shabbat Hagadol" – the Great Shabbat– because of the miracles of that day in Egypt. In the year of the Exodus, the 10th of the month of Nissan, on which the children of Israel took the Paschal Lamb, fell on Shabbat. Challenged by the Egyptians, the Israelites explained that they were taking the lamb to slaughter it at Hashem's instruction. The Egyptians were dumbstruck at the prospect of their god being destroyed.Shabbat Hagadol commemorates the first demonstrative step of faith in Hashem by Bnei Yisrael against the idolatry of the times and Hashem's compassionate intervention to defend us.

Given that the anniversary was date-specific in the Torah (Exodus 12, 3) rather than day-of-week specific, there are some who feel we should be marking HaAsiri Hagadol - the great 10th rather than the great Shabbat. This year, Shabbat Hagadol does fall on the 10th of Nissan, and for sure, we are particularly looking for His miraculous and compassionate intervention.

The Gemara (Brachot 58a) explains the possuk we recite when taking the Torah from the Ark לְךָ ה' הַגְּדֻלָּה וְהַגְּבוּרָה וְהַתִּפְאֶרֶת וְהַנֵּצַח וְהַהוֹד כִּי כֹל בַּשָּׁמַיִם וּבָאָרֶץ לְךָ ה' הַמַּמְלָכָה וְהַמִּתְנַשֵּׂא לְכֹל לְרֹאשׁ (1 Divrei Hayamim 29,11), "Yours, Hashem is the Greatness and the Might".

Greatness refers to Creation and strength refers to the Exodus. Creation was an act of kindness, or chesed, as there was no one/nothing in the world who was entitled to it. In reducing Himself to make room for Creation, Hashem demonstrated chesed and mercy to all that would follow. Rabbi Shmuel Bornsztain, the "Shem MiShmuel" (1855-1926) notes, herein lies Hashem's greatness. It is the paradox of Tzimtzum.

The Exodus was a manifestation of might. The Shem MiShmuel continues that, though the plagues suffered by the Egyptians were a judgement against them, Midat HaDin, Hashem's attribute of justice demanded that before Bnei Yisrael were redeemed, they should perform some mitzvot. It was important that they do something demanding and spiritually elevating to distinguish them from the idolaters around. For this reason, they were given the mitzvot of Brit Mila (from the time of Abraham) and the Korban Pesach in the generation of the Exodus. Their redemption would be justly earned rather than a mere merciful / chesed concession on the basis of our righteous ancestry.

Creation representing Mercy and the Exodus representing Might each appear in Kiddush on Shabbat. On Friday night we introduce the blessing "zecher leyetziyat mitzrayim" which is how Shabbat is identified in the Ten Commandments in Devarim (5, 16).

Although it is described there in terms of slavery and being strangers, we had an active role that one Shabbat in Egypt; asserting Hashem's majesty by standing apart and taking the lamb. Kiddush on Shabbat morning is taken from the Ten Commandments in Exodus (20:8), which references the memory of the Creation as its source.

Chesed and Din, Mercy and Might are contradictory or opposing attributes. We harness each, every Shabbat through Kiddush. This is how we synthesise Hashem's forces and become conduits for His Presence in this world.

The word Mitzrayim is linked with Metzarim, "straightened times". May our acts of Chesed move in Hashem to manifest His Greatness and act with mercy upon the people and land of Israel and all of Creation.

Pesach 5783 / 2023

A Time for Charoset

The maror we eat during the Seder represents not only the suffering of our ancestors in Egypt, but also the inescapable presence of bitterness in every person's journey through life. What we do with the maror is therefore a powerful expression of our Jewish response to suffering.

By reciting a beracha over the maror, we acknowledge that blessing is to be found in the midst of the curse. Dipping the maror into charoset, a sweet paste of wine, nuts and fruit, we emphasise the bitter-sweet nature of life and the silver lining that every dark cloud has.

While the pessimist bemoans the bitterness that spoils our sweet experiences, the optimist celebrates the sweetness that softens the sharp edges of bitterness in our lives and provides us with opportunities for a life of hope and joy.

The 19th century German scholar, Rabbi Shimshon Raphael Hirsch, gave a most profound interpretation of King David's desperate cry (Psalm 22:2) Keli Keli, lama azavtani? – My God, my God, why have You forsaken me? Rabbi Hirsch points out that the Hebrew lama (why?) can also be read as lema (wherefore?). King David was calling out Heavenwards: For what purpose, God, have you given me this agony? What must I now accomplish as a result of it?

On Pesach, we recall that the Korban Pesach, the Paschal Lamb offering, had to be a lamb, which was deified by the Egyptians. We took the very essence of idolatrous practice and used it to thank Hashem for redeeming us. A similar message is conveyed by our production of matzah, which must be made from grains, which, when fermented, become chametz. What can spoil our festival is used to celebrate it!

Viktor Frankl, the Austrian psychiatrist and Holocaust survivor, believed that suffering is an inescapable part of human life, which can be given meaning and purpose according to the way we choose to respond to it.

This is the spirit in which our communities have responded so admirably, with tenacity and determination, to move forward positively following the Covid pandemic. Yet, the world today still feels particularly fragile and precarious. The impact of the Russian invasion of Ukraine, a cost-of-living crisis and serious mental health issues have devastated numerous lives.

On my visits to communities around the UK, I have been deeply impressed by the way in which communities have adapted and responded to such extraordinary adversity, often enhanced by funding from our Project Welcome initiatives. Today, countless communities provide unprecedented levels of support for the financial, emotional and psychological needs of their members.

So, this Pesach I would like to thank you all for your wonderful communal achievements, which have been accomplished under the most trying of circumstances.

Thank you for adding the charoset to our maror!

Valerie joins me in wishing you all a Chag Kasher Vesameach.

PRIORITISE POLIO VACCINATION IN YOUR PESACH PREPARATIONS

A CALL TO OUR COMMUNITY TO GET VACCINATED NOW

Poliovirus continues to circulate in Jewish communities around the world, with recent cases of paralytic polio in unvaccinated individuals in Israel and New York.

Polio can cause paralysis or death and there is no cure, but it can be prevented by vaccination.

Vaccinate before you travel or visit relatives this Pesach to stop the disease from spreading. It is vital that you and your children are up to date with your polio and other childhood vaccines to protect yourselves, your family and our whole Jewish community. Those who are not fully vaccinated are at increased risk.

Contact your GP or local health centre to get vaccinated before Pesach or for advice on which vaccines you or your children may have missed.

Wishing all families a healthy, happy and kosher Pesach.

UK Health Security Agency

21 March 2023

PRIORITISE POLIO VACCINATION IN YOUR PESACH PREPARATIONS

- Poliovirus cases continue to be identified in Jewish communities in Israel and New York
- Polio disease can cause paralysis or death, but can be prevented by vaccination
- Get vaccinated at your GP surgery before you travel or visit relatives this Pesach

Health organisations and Jewish community leaders are urging anyone celebrating Pesach to catch up with missed polio vaccinations before travelling or visiting relatives ahead of the festivities. Polio is a serious infection that can cause paralysis and death, and there is no cure. However, serious illness from polio can be prevented by being fully vaccinated.

Tragically, cases of paralytic polio have recently been reported in an unvaccinated adult in New York and an unvaccinated child in Israel. Anyone who has not been fully vaccinated or is only partially vaccinated are at the highest risk of becoming seriously unwell with polio. Communities with low levels of vaccine uptake as a whole are particularly vulnerable.

Dr Leonora Weil, a public health consultant, from the UK Health Security Agency (UKHSA), said:

"I strongly encourage everyone celebrating Pesach to prioritise polio vaccination in your planning for the chaggim.

"Recently, there have been tragic cases of paralytic polio in Jewish communities in New York and Israel. Pesach is a time for celebration, getting together with loved ones and even a single case of paralysis from polio would be devastating as it is completely preventable.

"If you're not sure whether you or your child is vaccinated, check your child's red book or contact your GP. Get up to date with your polio vaccines before Pesach to protect yourself, your family and the community to ensure a Pesach kasher ve'sameach, and a Pesach in good health."

Dr Jonathan Cohen, Consultant and Head of Service, Pediatric Infectious Disease department at the Evelina London Children's Hospital said. 'Polio vaccines are very safe- and prevent this terrible disease. It would be a tragedy for a child to catch polio over Pesach because they were not vaccinated.'

In a recent Q and A document launched for the Jewish community health leaders highlighted the importance of vaccinating children:

Kinloss Presents

The Disputation by Hyam Maccoby

Referred to by Rabbi Lord Jonathan Sacks z''l as 'a powerful reconstruction of one of the most fascinating but ultimately tragic encounters between Jews and Christians in the Middle Ages' The Disputation showcases the dramatic debate of 1263 in the court of Spanish King James I of Aragon, between Nahmanides, a leading Jewish medieval philosopher, kabbalist and commentator and the Dominican friar (a converted Jew) Pablo Christiani.

The subject of this debate was whether Jesus was the Messiah. A fraught debate ensued with any number of potential and actual complications for the Jews….

Kinloss is putting on The Disputation soon and casting is now underway. We are looking for actors willing to be a local star.
