Extending Blessing

Yaakov's life is punctuated by episodes of blessing.

In Parshat Toledot, Yaakov masquerades as Eisav to receive his father's blessing (Bereshit 27,18). He is blessed again before fleeing to Lavan (Bereshit 28,1). In Parashat Vayeitzei, Lavan recognises that Hashem has blessed him for his hospitality to Yaakov (30, 27), and blesses his children and grandchildren as they leave (32,1). In last week's Parasha, Vayigash, as Yaakov arrives in Egypt, he blesses Pharaoh (47,8). This week in Vayechi, we have Yaakov's blessing of Menasseh and Efrayim (48,8-20) and his own sons (49, 1-33)

Yaakov's blessing of Menasseh and Efrayim contains two elements which we reprise in our daily/weekly prayers.

Although when blessing Pharoah, Yaakov had stated that the days of the years of his life had been few, miserable and incomplete (47, 10), he now speaks of a charmed existence, המלאך הגאל אתי מכל רע through the Angel who has redeemed me from all evil (48, 16). This passage is a part of our prayers before falling asleep every evening. It is traditionally recited by parents as they put their children to bed. (Other choice expressions may be used later when they send them back to bed!) It is a part of the blessing we use when all the children are brought up to the Torah on Simchat Torah.

הַמַּלְאָךְ הַגֹּאֵל אֹתִי מִכָּל־רָע יְבָרֵךְ֙ אֶת־הַנְּעָרִ֔ים וְיִקָּרֵ֥א בָהֶ֖ם שְׁמִ֑י וְשֵׁ֥ם אֲבֹתַ֛י אַבְרָהָ֥ם וְיִצְחָ֖ק וְיִדְגּ֥וּ לָרֹ֛ב בְּקֶ֥רֶב הָאָֽרֶץ׃

May the Angel who has redeemed me from all harm, bless the children. In them may my name be recalled; and the names of my fathers, Abraham and Isaac; and may they be prolific upon the earth.

The second element from Yaakov's blessing of his grandchildren is incorporated into our blessing of our children on a Friday night.

With Yaakov deliberately placing his right hand over the younger (Efrayim) and his left over the older (Menasseh), we are told (48,20), וַיְבָרְכֵ֣ם בַּיּ֣וֹם הַה֔וּא לֵאמֹ֖ר בְּךָ֣ יְבָרֵ֑ךְ יִשְׂרָאֵל֙ לֵאמֹ֔ר יְשִׂמְךָ֥ אֱ-לֹהִ֖ים כְּאֶפְרַ֥יִם וְכִמְנַשֶּׁ֑ה וַיָּ֥שֶׂם אֶת־אֶפְרַ֖יִם לִפְנֵ֥י מְנַשֶּֽׁה׃

So, he blessed them that day, saying, "By you shall Israel invoke blessings, saying: God make you like Ephraim and Manasseh." Thus, he put Ephraim before Manasseh.

The Tur HaAroch notes בְּךָ֣ יְבָרֵ֑ךְ יִשְׂרָאֵל֙ – through you, Yosef, the parent, Israel's grandchildren are blessed. As parents we should not miss our opportunities to model behaviour and extend blessing.

On a Friday night, for girls, in place of יְשִׂמְךָ֥ אֱ-לֹהִ֖ים כְּאֶפְרַ֥יִם וְכִמְנַשֶּׁ֑ה, we invoke the matriarchs and substitute.יְשִׂמֵךְ אֱ-לֹהִים כְּשָׂרָה רִבְקָה רָחֵל וְלֵאָה

The tradition is to use this line followed by the Birkat Cohanim, ...יברכך ה' וישמרך (Bemidbar 6, 24-26).

When, for example, we bless Bar and Bat Mitzvahs with this formula, the halachic preference is not to raise our hands in the style of Cohanim. Our Rabbonim (apart from our Rabbis-Cohen) should not usurp or imitate the ritual designated for the Bnei Aharon, and even Cohanim should only use the style of Birkat Cohanim in its place.

However, on a Friday night as we bless our children, there is a tradition to place our hands on our children's heads, in part emulating the style of Yaakov Avinu.

The minhag is sourced in the writings of the c17 Italian Kabbalist, Rabbi Aharon Berachia of Modina (d1639) in his book Maavar Yabok and in the Sefer HaChayim, written by R' Chayim ben Betzalel (d1588), the eldest brother of the Maharal of Prague.

R' Yosef Yuspe Hahn Nordlingen (d 1637), who was head of the Frankfurt Beth Din instructs to use both hands when blessing one's children on a Friday night as fewer than the full ten fingers might appear stingy (Sefer Yosef Ometz). Amongst the earliest siddurim to contain the blessing for children on a Friday night is the Siddur HaYaavetz (R' Yaakov Emden 1697-1776) who instructs placing both hands on the child's head. The Vilna Gaon (d1797) instructs to place only one hand to distinguish from the Cohanim. R' Shlomo Zalman Auerbach (d1995) held that both hands should be used. The Yaavetz cites a "half-way house" approach of the Chacham Zvi (d1718) that one hand be used on a regular Friday night but two on erev Yom Kippur.

The capacity to bestow a blessing in Hashem's name is profound. It is a blessing in itself, indicating our acknowledgement of and submission to a superior power. It is also a recognition of our spiritual mission – we are the conduit for Hashem in this world. It is our role to channel His blessings and set them upon the next generations.

Sirs, Surplices and Sanctifying Heaven

Writing letters of congratulations or condolences is very much a part of my life. Nonetheless, as Shabbat of 2022 gave way to 2023, my first correspondence was atypical. One of each.

What a great pleasure to offer congratulations to Chief Rabbi Mirvis, to Valerie and the whole family on the award of a KBE in the King's New Year Honours "for services to the Jewish Community, to Interfaith Relations and to Education."

My letter of condolence was to Cardinal Pell, former Archbishop of Sydney, on the passing of Benedict XVI. He and the former Pope had been close colleagues. When Sydney hosted the Catholic World Youth Day in 2008, there was an interfaith event. Cardinal Pell had invited me to deliver the address of welcome on behalf of the Jewish community.

St Mary's Cathedral is just a couple of hundred meters across the park from The Great Synagogue. Over a million people came to Sydney to participate in World Youth Day. They were joined by about 600 bishops and cardinals, as well as by 6,600 reporters. Locals and tourists were pressed for comment – "What does the Papal visit mean to you?"

Of course, there were a range of answers from rapture to indifference and some of robust hostility. Sydney has one of the largest Holocaust Survivor communities. In Munich, Joseph Aloisius Ratzinger (1927-2022) had been conscripted into the Hitler youth after his 14th birthday in 1941.

In scripting my remarks, that episode of Fawlty Towers played in my mind, as Basil burbles "We're all friends now… Don't mention the War…" but goes on to do just that.

I decided that I would; and reflected:

"There is of course, delight, in any encounter with a person of great stature, who has devoted so much of his life to the spiritual enrichment of our world.

"On a personal level, I am bound to reflect that my grandparents, who were born in Berlin had to flee from there, just 70 years ago. Their parents, grandparents and siblings perished.

"When I am asked what it means for me to participate in this historic event, my very first reaction is that for them, and for their generation, such an encounter as today's would have been unthinkable; it would be quite beyond their imagination."

I noted the significant steps in interfaith relations, particularly Nostra Aetate and Vatican II. I noted the Pope's commitment to our ongoing dialogue.

"…Our Scriptures elaborate on our love for our fellows, our neighbours and the stranger. Our world is shrinking and draws us all closer. For the sake of humanity, we must turn the strangers into our neighbours and our neighbours into our friends..."

At the end of the event as he shook my hand, he looked me in the eye and said, "Your family were in Auschwitz… so sorry."

I wonder to this day what my grandparents, who fled and my great-grandparents, reduced to ash would have made of the occasion, of my words and of his.

Although supportive of interfaith initiatives, Pope Benedict's teachings were conservative and he gave greater scope to the Tridentine (Latin) Mass, which has historical anti-Jewish connotations.

Cardinal Pell had extended his sympathies to me and our community on the passing of Chief Rabbi Lord Sacks. In writing to him this week, I noted the loss of his mentor, my memories of our encounter and my prayers for faith in its many robes and languages to elevate humanity and bind us in the service of Hashem.

The Chief Rabbi's honour recognises that within Anglo Jewry, our leadership continues to play a prominent role in this important work. Both Rabbi Mirvis' contribution and the recognition by His Majesty serve to sanctify God's Name among the nations.

Shabbat Shalom

R' Jeremy Lawrence

This Shabbat we are delighted to welcome Rabbi Joseph Dweck and Margalit to Kinloss.

Rabbi Dweck has served as the Senior Rabbi of the Spanish and Portuguese Jewish Community since 2013. He is a Deputy President of LSJS and is a President of the CCJ.

Rabbi Dweck will give the sermon in the Main and address the Sephardi Service.

From the Chairs of Kinloss

Chief Rabbi Sir Ephraim Mirvis

It seems hugely appropriate that in the week we read about Jacob blessing Ephraim that we learn about the King's first New Year's Honours list which has graciously bestowed a knighthood on our beloved Chief Rabbi.

The honour is fourfold. It is a recognition of Chief Rabbi Mirvis' work in the community and beyond. He has reached out to peoples of all faiths in the United Kingdom, the Commonwealth, and the wider world. Only recently he was a leading participant at an inter-faith conference in the UAE, an event unthinkable a few years ago.

His voice is often heard on Thought for the Day amongst other broadcasts and like his illustrious predecessors he brings a light unto the nation even when it is cold dark and wet outside.

It is also an honour for his family who have given him such steadfast support and we remember his children growing up in Finchley as part of our community. Valerie, of course, has worked tirelessly for the London Borough of Barnet for many years.

Thirdly it is an honour for the Anglo Jewish Community as a whole. Chief Rabbi Mirvis is the fourth Chief Rabbi to be knighted following Chief Rabbis Israel Brodie, Immanuel Jacobovits and Jonathan Sacks. It demonstrates that Anglo Jewry is a valued and integral part of British Society.

Finally, we at Kinloss can take pleasure from the 17 years that he has served as Rabbi of our community, a beloved and well-respected figure whose legacy to us is a dynamic, Zionistic, and forward-looking community. Every year when he comes for Neilah, many congregants tell us that this is one of the highlights of their year and he has often remarked where else would he want to be on this holiest day of the year but at his "home" Kinloss.

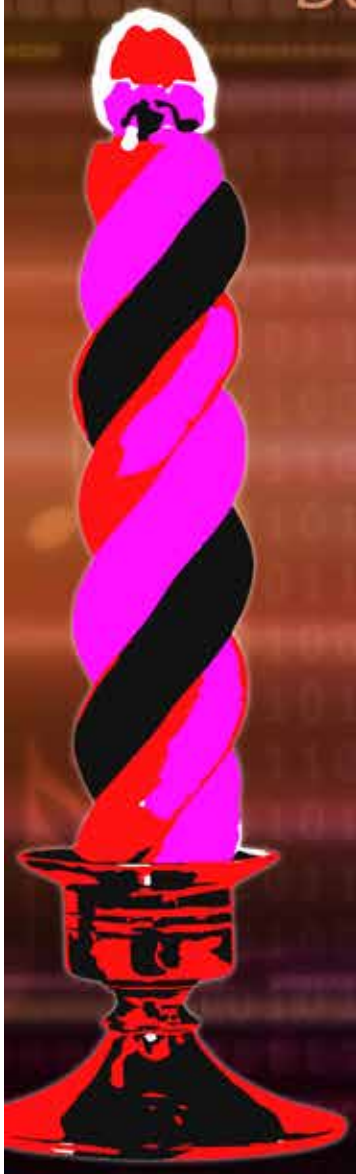

We all wish him a hearty Mazeltov and look forward to marking this event with an appropriate celebration.
