Policy Chair sets out work to support Square Mile recovery

Supporting the recovery

The City of London Corporations Policy Chair Catherine McGuinness today set out a range of steps being taken to support recovery across the Square Mile.

In a statement to the Court of Common Council, the City Corporations main decision-making body, she said: "There is no denying that this delay is disappointing for all of us. But we can be confident in a strong recovery for the City, supported by our enduring fundamental strengths, and I am sure we will all be working together towards this. Read the full statement including the actions City Corporation is taking to support the recovery by clicking the link, below.
